"Who’s Who Among Students” Lists Thirty Seniors

Sixteen Men And Fourteen Women Listed

From the student organizations of the University, 26 names have been announced to "Who’s Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges," according to Dean Elbert J. Handford of the University’s School of Arts and Science.

The list is composed of 16 men and 10 women and is based on scholarship, leadership, and character, according to Dr. Handford.

The aim of the program is to recognize "the men and women of the university who stand out as leaders and examples of high personal character.

The program is sponsored by the National Education Foundation and the National Student Association.

The following are the thirty names announced:

The list includes students from various organizations and departments of the University, including the school of arts and science, the school of education, the school of business, and the college of liberal arts.

The program is designed to recognize students who have excelled academically, as well as those who have demonstrated leadership and character.

The names are those of students who have been selected by their peers and faculty members for their outstanding contributions to the University community.

Council Elects Delegates

Becca Pritchard has been appointed to represent the student body at the University’s Board of Trustees, and has been named to represent the students at the National Student Association.

The council also elected two student representatives, one for the M.A. program and one for the B.A. program.

The M.A. program representative is Becca Pritchard, and the B.A. program representative is Joseph A. Martin.

ODK Features Russell As Banquet Speaker

Clariosophic Society Wins Neophyte Debate Tuesday

The Clariosophic Society held its first annual joint debate on Tuesday, November 15, at the University’s main building.

The debate was held in the main building’s auditorium and was attended by a large crowd.

The topic of the debate was "The Future of the University: A Look to the Next Generation." The debate was moderated by Dr. J. Brown, a professor of philosophy.

The Clariosophic Society is a student organization that meets weekly to discuss various topics related to philosophy.

Organization Presidents Are Invited

"Leadership in an Age of Crisis" will be the topic of a speech given by Dr. J. Brown, president of the University, at the annual banquet for the Organization Presidents’ Association.

Dr. Brown is a well-known speaker on the topic of leadership and will address the audience on the challenges facing today’s leaders.

The banquet will be held on Thursday, November 21, at the University’s main dining hall.

The banquet is open to all Organization Presidents and their guests.

Homecoming Festivities Begin Today

The University’s Homecoming festivities will begin today with a parade through the campus.

The parade will feature floats, marching bands, and student organizations.

The highlight of the day will be the Homecoming football game against the University of Arizona.

Laws Have Green Grass

This Winter

A bright green "Winterlaw" is being sprayed on the grass around the campus to save the grass from turning brown during the winter months.

The grass is being sprayed with a special chemical that will help keep the grass green throughout the winter.

The spray is applied on a regular basis to keep the grass healthy and green.

The University has also installed a sprinkler system to water the grass during dry spells.
